TRAGIC DEATH OF BOY IN AIR WELL IN 1922 REVEALED

Skelton, Clothing And An Open Knife Mute Evidence Of Tragedy

Muncie, Ind., July 10—(UP)—From a crouching skeleton, a jack knife, an old school calendar and outside evidence dug up overnight, authorities pieced together today a harrowing story of how a youth, probably Perlie Guelby Hogg, 16, died a lingering death almost nine years ago in an abandoned air shaft of the Central high school.

Carefree, happy and looking forward with boyish enthusiasm to a hunting trip during the Christmas holidays just ahead, Perlie, an orphan, went to school the morning of December 16, 1922.

He was neard of no more until yesterday when plumbers opened the airshaft and drew back amazed when they saw crouching in the corner the skeleton with bits of a corduroy suit clinging to the bones.

Charles Cooper, an uncle with whom Perlie lived, looked at the fragments of evidence at the bottom of the death trap today and recognized the heavy work shoes Perlie had worn the morning he started away for school and never returned. He likewise identified the jack knife, opened and apparently used by the youth in a vain desperate attempt to cut through the walls of the shaft when he found he was trapped and faced a horrible slow death.

Wall Sealed 4 Years

Investigators read in the gruesome evidence at the bottom of the shaft that Perlie had fallen from an upper floor, perhaps while sneaking a forbidden smoke in the air shaft, for school authorities said the well was closed and sealed four years ago when it was found pupils were using it as a smoking room.

How long the youth may have lived, fought and cried for help was a matter of conjecture. The mute jack knife was the only evidence that gave a hint of the death struggle.

Some Oddities In Wire News Today From Various Parts

MUSICIANS BALKE

New York, July 10—(UP)—Payl Sydow has found it necessary to omit "Vivovinezza," the Fascist National anthem, from the programs for series of "promenade concerts." Following the example of the great Maestro, Arturo Toscanini, three conductors refused to lead the anthem and were dismissed. Then, when an American conductor agreed to play it, the orchestra refused.

NOT DESIRED EFFECT

White Plains N. Y., July 10—(UP)—Frank Beattie thought to soften the heart of his inamorata by threatening to kill himself if she continued to spurn him. But she only laughed at him. So he fired a pistol at his chest. It was a blank, and the net result of his melodramatic act was a powder burn and a $5 fine in court.

OFFICIALS IN TEARS

Columbus, O., July 10—(UP)—Tears flowed profusely in the rooms of officials at the Ohio state penitentiary here when electricians accidentally tripped a switch in a guard room. Six tear gas bombs exploded, sending the officials, red-eyed and weeping, racing out into the open air.

LOCK YOUR AUTO

Chicago July 10—(UP)—Automobiles left unlocked on Chicago streets henceforth will be marked with warning tags by the police department for all—including auto thieves—to see. The tags say in large print: "Lock your car."

Thousands of accidents occur and crimes are committed in stolen cars. You are morally responsible if your car is stolen while unlocked.

Help reduce crime by locking it."

ONE ON GOVERNOR

Madison S. D. July 10—(UP)—A young man was stopped at the entrance of Lake Madison Auditorium by a young woman who wanted to know what was going on. He said Governor La Follette was going to speak. Whereupon the young woman said she hated dry speeches and hurried away, leaving the young man embarrassed because he happened to be Governor La Follette.

PETTING IN CHURCH

Siuland, Md., July 10—(UP)—Police were called on today to put an end to petting parties in a church. The pastor complained that the church had been entered several times at night and that "bottles and other debris" in the yard, indicated some kind of a party had been held there."

APPEALED TO JUDGE

Chicago, July 10—(UP)—William Burke had no shirt on when he walked into Judge Thomas A. Green's court on a charge of vagrancy.

He had no belt, either, and he was holding up his trousers with both hands. Also, he was barefooted; his trousers were torn and his face was scratched.

"Two fellows out there in the bullpen," he told Judge Green, "took my clothes away and beat me up."

Judge Green made a tour of the bullpen, found Burke's shirt and his belt and returned them.

"Here's your clothes, and clear out of here," the Judge said. "You have been punished enough so I won't fine you."

Burke left but was back in a few minutes, saying,

"Say Judge, could you get me a pair of shoes from one of those fellows out in the bullpen. I lost mine a couple of days ago when I was sleeping in somebody's auto and had to leave suddenly when the owner returned."

TUNNEY APOLOGIZED

Chicago, July 10—(UP)—Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion who reads Shakespeare, recently snubbed Robert Maynard Hutchins, President of Chicago University, but he hastened to apologize it was revealed today.

The incident became known today when Hutchins, known as the nation's youngest university president, saluted with Mrs. Hutchins from New York for vacation on the island of Brioni in the Adriatic. Tunney once spent an extended vacation there.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutchins were considering a trip to Brioni, it was revealed, and decided to call upon Tunney for some information concerning the island. Hutchins put in a long distance call for Tunney in New York and received this message from the operator:

"Mr. Tunney does not want to talk to you."

Hutchins, surprised at the rebuff, began considering other vacation sites. He had almost decided on Italy when, several days later, Tunney called him back.

"It's all a mistake," the former boxing champion said. "I didn't know it was you."

Then he spent five minutes at day long distance rates in apologizing and 20 minutes in telling what a fine place Brioni is for vacationing.

GOVERNOR'S VETO POWER CUTS TWO MILLION EXPENSE

Killed Number Of Bills Today: Other Measures Enacted

Springfield, Ill., July 10—(UP)—Creation of an aviation commission which would regulate flying in Illinois along lines laid down by the United States Department of Commerce, the raising of the amount of wages of the head of a family as being exempt from garnishment from $15 to $20 per week, and increasing powers of the state in the work of eradicating noxious weeds, are provided in legislative measures which were signed and enacted into law by Governor L. L. Emmerson here today.

Should the Dixon boys trim Oglesby tomorrow they will go to Rockford to compete in the down-state finals which will determine the team to meet the Cook county winners for the state championship. The probable lineups in tomorrow's game, which will be played at the Legion stadium in Rockford at 3 P. M., are:

To Regulate Flying

Under the new law regulating flying in this state, a commission of five members, to be appointed by Emmerson is created. It provides for a secretary at a salary of $5,000 a year and requires all airports, air schools and air beacon lights to obtain a license and pay an annual fee. The commission is directed to require that all aircraft and pilots operating in this state to comply with requirements of the federal Commerce Department. Pay of the members of the commission, two of whom must be experienced pilots, is to be at the rate of $15 per day but not more than $500 per year, and they are to serve for four-year alternating terms.

The measure was sponsored in the state legislature by Senator Richard Meents, Republican, Ashland.

The law relating to raising exemptions of family heads from wage garnishments was backed in the legislature by the Illinois State Federation of Labor and was offered by Representative R. G. Soderstrom, Republican, Streator, and president of the Federation.

The act in regard to noxious weeds substitutes the words "noxious weeds" for Canada thistles and authorizes the State Department of Agriculture to enforce it and requires that owners of land on which weeds are grown to take steps for their eradication.

George H. Copeland hitch-hiked between Oklahoma City and Norman for three years to complete a law course in the state university.

DIXON TEAM IS ALL READY FOR CRUCIAL BATTLE

Juniors To Play Oglesby In Rockford Tomorrow At 3

By W. W. CHAPLIN

New York, July 10—(AP)—Nicola Tesla, one of the greatest electrical inventors since Benjamin Franklin flew his historic kite, was 75 years old today.

He was presented with a volume containing letters of felicitation and congratulations from about 100 inventors and scientists all over the world.

Tesla has left behind him three quarters of a century of high achievement, being generally considered the father both of radio and of modern power generation and transmission, but it is in the fourth quarter he expects to do his greatest work.

Should the Dixon boys trim Oglesby tomorrow they will go to Rockford to compete in the down-state finals which will determine the team to meet the Cook county winners for the state championship.

The probable lineups in tomorrow's game, which will be played at the Legion stadium in Rockford at 3 P. M., are:

To Enter Festival

W. H. Flamm, 1000 Avery Avenue, vocalist and instructor in music, will be another representative of the Dixon area in the Chicago Music Festival, Aug. 22. Mr. Flamm notified the Telegraph today he would enter the festival in the event for which he is fitted.

IN POLICE COURT

Maynard Geisler of this city was assessed a fine of $5 and costs in police court last night on a charge of speeding. Robert Jocoy of this city was arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a muffler cutout and a fine of $3 and costs was assessed by Police Magistrate A. E. Simonson.

TO DELIVER ADDRESS

Postmaster John E. Moyer, president of the Illinois Postmasters' association, will go to Springfield tomorrow to attend the twelfth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Postoffice clerks. Saturday evening the Dixon postmaster will deliver the principal address at the annual banquet which will be served at the Abraham Lincoln hotel.

TO RESUME OPERATIONS

The confectionery division of the Borden company will resume operations Monday morning at 8 o'clock after being closed down for the annual one week vacation with pay period. During this time the machinery and equipment has been thoroughly overhauled and, as far as this fact the hour of opening the factory will be 8 o'clock Monday morning instead of 7, the customary time for beginning operations.

IN COUNTY COURT

A hearing to dissolve the Union drainage district was held before Judge William Leech in the County Court today. The district serves approximately 1,800 acres located in LaFayette township, Ogle county and Ashton township in Lee county. The commissioners of the district are Clarence Drummond, Conrad Smith and Jesse Jordan.

ELBOW FRACTURED

Jay Sipe, clerk at the postoffice, was the victim of a very unusual accident Wednesday evening about 9:30 while driving on the Lincoln Highway east of Prairieville. He was driving east on the highway, his left arm lying on the door of the front of the car when he passed a westbound truck. The body of the truck struck his left arm, fracturing the bone at the elbow, inflicting deep cuts, but the Sipe car was untouched.

The men were disappointed in their failure in the quest for a $25,000 prize offered by a Japanese newspaper for the first non-stop flight between Seattle and Japan. Previous attempts by other fliers, two by Harold Bromley, Tacoma, also have failed.

"It's tough," Robbins said, "but we couldn't see any other way out and the weather was so bad and visibility nil, we would have killed ourselves outright in attempting to get through."

Big Decrease In Postal Business

Springfield, Ill., July 10—(UP)—Volume of business of the United States Post Office Department decreased about $50,000,000 during the fiscal year just ended, according to Congressman Clyde Kelly, Pennsylvania, who addressed delegates to the twelfth annual convention of the Illinois Federation of Post Office Clerks here today.

As a result of this decrease, according to Kelly, hope of ridding the Post Office Department of its deficit must be temporarily abandoned.

Kelly declared that had the normal annual increase of post office business continued it would have enabled the department to wipe out its deficit. Kelley is chairman of the House Post Office and Post Roads committee.

Apology To Mexico

Washington, July 10 (UP)—The State Department today began the drafting of a note to Mexico, in which, officials said, there probably will be included an expression of regret over the sentencing in Chicago of Adolfo Dominguez, Mexican Consul, to six months in prison for contempt of court.

Drafting of the note began immediately after receipt of an explanation of the Chicago incident from Governor Emerson of Illinois.

Legislators Praised; And Not Blamed, for Work in Session

Springfield, Ill., July 10.—(AP)—Catherine Waugh McCulloch, legislative chairman of the Congregational Woman's Missionary Society of Illinois, today heaved a sigh of relief "that the legislators of Illinois and of the various states have done no worse and a sigh of regret that they did no better."

"The defeat of the bill to repeal the Illinois prohibition act" she says "was not due to the legislators, for both Houses passed the bill, our formerly esteemed Senate, however, by only a constitutional majority, no more, but just enough. Many legislators defended their change from a 'dry' to a 'wet' position by the large 'wet' vote in November on the 'wet' referendum, which was really a mock referendum, merely advisory. The loss of these votes which periled the Illinois prohibition act should be a lesson to everyone 'dry' never again ignore any sort of a 'wet' referendum, whether in a newspaper, a street car, in social life or at the polls. All the large groups of Illinois women and many church organizations urged legislatures to vote 'no' and our skirts are clear."

"However, Illinois' impending disgrace was averted by Governor Emmerson's veto to which he was encouraged by bushels of telegrams and about one hundred thousand letters. It was a little late in the day to wake up but we were saved this time."

"Illinois church and club women do not desire a renewal of such agonized uncertainty in the next legislature and are already preparing to nominate better legislators at the April primaries, 1932. Then in November, regardless of party, they will choose statesmen to make Illinois laws in 1933."

"In Illinois our Governor took $150,000 from the appropriation for repair of arsenals more, however, in the interests of economy than to discourage militarism."

"We mourn the loss of the women's eight-hour bill endorsed by the churches the women's clubs, the State Federation of Labor, and, of course, the Women's Trade Union League. It was opposed by the Illinois Manufacturers' Association. With thousands of women out of work it is a pity that certain factories can still overwork other workers."

"The bills for women jurors were lost by one vote in the House. The Senate would have carried them. Last session the same bills passed with a referendum attached. That was a cowardly trick to evade responsibility but the women's campaign so educated the voters that the bills received a majority and were carried. Then the Supreme Court held that the referendum made the bills unconstitutional as the Illinois Constitution did not give the Legislature authority to delegate their law-making power to others. So the new bill without a referendum, were introduced during the closing weeks of the session and lost. Perhaps the botched verdict of the Indiana men jurors in the infamous murder-rape case in Gary made Illinois legislators fearful that in similar Illinois cases, women jurors might be bright enough to prevent such a betrayal of justice. They certainly could not claim that the referendum on the jury bills of two years before did not show that their constituents wanted the bills to succeed."

"No provision was made for maternity and infancy care yet you ought to hear some legislators wax sentimental in their Mother's Day orations. Illinois appropriated a goodly sum for a statue to Gold Star mothers, and there are legislators who will write poems and compose music to honor mothers, especially dead ones, but living women, especially."

SENTENCING CAPONE.

Al Capone's lawyer has carefully explained to Federal Judge Wilkerson in Chicago that it would be beyond all precedent for Capone to get more than three years in prison on his income tax and prohibition law indictments.

Under the law, the judge could impose a maximum sentence of 32 years. But, as Capone's lawyer has pointed out, no one who pleaded guilty to an income tax violation has ever been sentenced to more than 18 months, and that term is also close to the maximum ever imposed following a plea of guilty to violation of the liquor law.

Consequently, the judge was told, it would be terribly unfair if Capone were to get more than about three years altogether.

This makes a perfectly sound argument, as far as it goes. The only trouble with it is that there are exceptions to all rules; and Capone is one of the most striking exceptions that the federal courts will ever be asked to deal with.

Capone has become more than just a law breaker, more than just another gang leader. He has become the personification of organized crime in the United States. For nearly a decade his name has stood for desperate, insolvent lawlessness. By his very existence he has served notice on the rest of the country that organized government in a large American city can come perilously close to a complete breakdown.

Nor is that all.

Capone has stood for more than organized crime. He has been the supreme exponent of the "fix." He has had enormous political power in Chicago. His influence has reached into high places. If that were not so he could not have carried on his activities for six months.

Now, for the first time in his life, the law has struck him a body blow. Some of the best detective work ever seen on the continent has landed him at the bar of justice. The federal government itself has stepped in to end his career.

Suppose, though, that he escapes with a short sentence. Every gangster in Chicago—and a whole host of honest citizens as well—will assume, rightly or wrongly, that the power of the "fix" is still with him. It will be taken for granted that his influence reaches not only the authorities at Chicago but the power of the United States government as well.

The damage that such a development could do would be almost incalculable.

Which is why the argument of the lawyer is a little bit less than convincing.

A SIGN OF CORRUPTION.

A Detroit grand jury, ending a 10-months' investigation of gangland activities, has indicted 50 persons. Two are high police officials; the others, whose identity so far has not been made public, are said to be "public officials, racketeers and gangsters."

That last phase explains a great deal, and many a city besides Detroit could profitably ponder over it for a little while.

Detroit, being cursed by defiant gangs, looked into the matter and found an unholy alliance of "public officials, racketeers and gangsters" responsible for its troubles; and that, in the long run, is the way it always is. Whenever a city's underworld becomes bold and more than usually menacing, it is a perfectly safe bet that some such alliance as that exists. The presence in any city of well-organized gangs is an unfailing sign that somewhere in the city government there is some rather extensive crookedness.

JOBS AND CRIMINALS

If you have ever doubted that there is a direct and important connection between crime and economic conditions, you might profitably consider the fact that the Marshall Stillman movement, an organization which sought to rehabilitate criminals by getting them honest jobs, has gone out of business because of the depression.

The depression eliminated the jobs, and the criminals promptly went back to crime. So the Marshall Stillman movement is being replaced by the Association for Better Citizenship, which will try to prevent young men from entering the underworld.

Seldom is the economic background of crime better illuminated than by this event. Before we can eliminate our underworld, apparently, we will have to take the kinks out of our industrial system.

Some hotels rate high, says the office sage, and others have high rates.

You can't charge a hockey player with irresponsibility for passing the puck.

Most women think that Easter gives them sufficient excuse to get high hat.

Then there's the undesirable citizen who, told to leave town, turned on his radio to get distance.

GERMAN RADICALS PLAN OPPOSITION TO DEBT HOLIDAY

Head Of Reichsbank Now
In Paris Seeking A Long Time Loan

Paris July 10.—(AP)—Hans Luther, President of the Reichsbank, was in Paris today for a conference with French officials, presumably to seek their support in floating an international loan of $400,000,000 to stabilize German credit.

Arriving from London last night, he declined to make a statement when asked if he would talk with Governor Clement Moret of the Bank of France. "As a bank president I reserve all my liberty of action," was his only reply.

It was understood however, that he would meet both M. Moret and Finance Minister Pierre Léonard to consider with them means of supplementing the Hoover moratorium in stemming the flow of foreign currency from the Reich. They are believed to have gone over the situation in preparation for his visit.

Authoritative circles believed Herr Luther would endeavor to obtain long term credits from an underwriting combine of the strongest French English and American banks thereby strengthening the Reichsbank's position and exerting a beneficial psychological effect on foreign investors.

Long term credits it was felt would give the Reich time in which to renew the flow of capital into the country without facing the necessity of continually meeting the big strain of short-term obligations.

Echo De Paris said in this connection that Herr Luther was seeking from the banks of France and England a loan of 12,000,000,000 francs (about $480,000,000) on a longer basis of credit than previously extended by those banks.

Official circles considered that such an abnormal operation would require the closest study inasmuch as it appeared that the withdrawals from Germany were not due to the repatriation of American capital but to the flight of German capital.

It was felt that it would be only normal for the banks to withhold fresh credits until the Reichsbank takes extremely severe measures to restrict credit such as Hjalmar Schacht, then President did in 1929.

RADICALS ACTIVE

Berlin, July 10 (AP)—Germany's radical elements are massing their forces for an attack on the Hoover moratorium in the belief that it will break the Treaty of Versailles.

Delegates of all parties opposed to Chancellor Brüning's government met last night to consider ways and means of combatting what they termed "the attempt of those now in power to continue the policy of fulfillment of the Versailles treaty under veiled forms."

Adolf Hitler leader of the National Socialists and Alfred Hugenberg, Nationalist chieftain, both of whom have expressed skepticism that the debt holiday would aid Germany, dominated the deliberations.

Prince August Wilhelm, fourth son of the former Kaiser, told a Nationalist meeting in Hanover that he would have approved the Hoover offer if it had subscribed to these conditions:

First if immediately after its publication the terrible emergency decrees which are bleeding the German people had been abolished and second, if the plan had been headed this is the beginning of the end of the shameful Treaty of Versailles.

The Hitler and Hugenberg press were cold toward the Hoover holiday when first announced some papers asserting it would not materially affect the economic status of the Reich and others saying it would only postpone the evil day of collapse.

An earth shock was recently felt for fifty miles in Ohio and it was laid to the fall of a meteorite.

Malnutrition is now thought to be the cause of curvature of the spine, spine.

Fish Get High Life And Angles Gain in New Plan

Chicago—After having a staff of census takers enter their favorite weed beds to find out how many there were in the "family" and whether they had enough minnows to go round, the finny inhabitants of the lakes in Kankakee county, Michigan, are going to live better and see a lot of high life this summer but gone are their days of privacy, says a recent fishing bulletin from the Izaak Walton League.

The flattering attention given the black bass and other game fish in Kankakee county is just one phase of the most intensive lake and stream management program ever undertaken in the middle west, according to recreational and conservation authorities. It has been sponsored by the state division of the Izaak Walton League in cooperation with the Bureau of Fisheries Institute of the University of Michigan, the department of Conservation, and county officials.

The objective behind this county program is to grow more fish, provide better fishing for both residents and visitors, and spread the activities of the rod and reel enthusiasts over all lakes which are well stocked. Every fishable body of water has been surveyed. If one lacked food or game fish, it has been "fertilized" to produce it. When weed beds and brush heaps were needed as cover for the finny tribes, they have been provided. Even spawning grounds have been built in for the game fish. Trails and roads are being opened up to back-in-the-woods fishing holes and the entire county is decorated with signs and markers to guide 1931 campers and fishermen to good fishing and good times.

U. S. Will Accept Invitation To Meet

Washington, July 9.—(AP)—The American government will accept within the next few days the invitation of the League of Nations to participate in the world disarmament conference in Geneva next February.

Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department made the announcement of the government's plans late yesterday when the invitation was received. The acceptance will be wholehearted, the administration urged by President Hoover, being strongly in favor of reducing armaments to relieve economic stress.

The announcement came shortly after the Hoover administration reaffirmed its adherence to the integrity of the inter-allied war debt agreements. President Hoover's plan for a year's moratorium on intergovernmental payments was definitely described by Castle as contemplating no revision of the war debt agreements.

Later Undersecretary Castle described intergovernmental debts as only one of the deterrents to renewed prosperity and declared "unproductive expenditures on armaments" even more important.

ROASTING OF COFFEE
MORE IMPORTANT
THAN THE BLEND

Under-roasting and Over-roasting Produce an Unsatisfactory Flavor

It is a fact that two lots of coffee from the same blend can be given entirely different flavors by different degrees of roast. A delicious, uniform flavor in coffee depends upon a uniform roast.

Hills Bros. invented and patented Controlled Roasting—a process that roasts perfectly all the time. Hills Bros. Coffee always has the full charm of the flavor that Nature puts in the coffee berries.

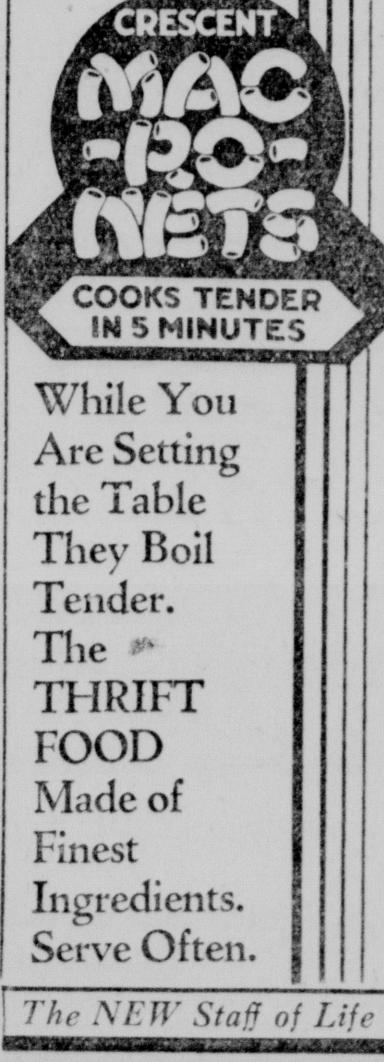

As the accuracy of the hour-glass depends upon an even, continuous flow . . . a little at a time . . . so a perfect, uniform flavor is secured in Hills Bros. Coffee by Controlled Roasting—the patented process that roasts evenly, continuously . . . a little at a time. There is automatic control of heat—thereby eliminating guesswork, which is the constant problem when coffee is roasted in bulk.

Vacuum cans preserve the wonderful flavor of Hills Bros. Coffee. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed and kept out of these cans. Ordinary "air-tight" cans won't keep coffee fresh. Order Hills Bros. Coffee today. Ask for it by name, and look for the Arab trade-mark on the can.

ROCK RIVER BIBLE CONFERENCE

Dr. John Marvin Dean, who is the Speaker at the Bible Conference on the two opening days, Sunday and Monday, is known throughout the length and breadth of the land as a speaker of striking force, whose messages are always well worth listening to. He was at one time pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Chicago, and was one of the founders of the Northern Baptist Theological Seminary. On the West Coast, he was successively pastor at Seattle, Pasadena and Portland. At Pasadena a large and beautiful church was built during his pastorate. He is the author of some very outstanding books, such as "The Undying Torch." He now resides in Kalamazoo, Mich., and is doing splendid work in the evangelistic and Bible Conference work. Our friends will remember him for the excellent work he accomplished in our first Conference. We are delighted to welcome him back to our midst and are assured that his messages, always virile and helpful, will come to us again and help us in our work for the Master.

ST. PAUL'S EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH

Lloyd Warren Walter Pastor Rev. Carl B. Caughman, Pastor in India.

9:00 A.M. Bible school. We had a very commendable beginning last Sunday for the first session when the school opened at the early hour—nine o'clock. We shall expect a better and larger school during the summer on account of the fine change. It is quite an ovation but it looks as if it would succeed.

This program next Sunday after-

10:15 A.M. Divine Worship. The chorister is planning to unite both the choirs again in this service. The effect is rather striking to see the black gowns among the white. There should be an equal number of both. The congregation is becoming better acquainted with the new hymnal which was lately adopted. We shall worship most profitably when we know to memory the service and most of the hymns.

6:30 P.M. Luther League meets. A real debate is to be staged at this meeting. This is something exceptional and genuine interest and profit should result.

During the afternoon the formal opening of the Annual Rock River Bible Conference will be held in the Auditorium on the Assembly Park. Dr. Marvin Dean will be the preacher at the evening service. A very exceptional array of talent has been procured for this year's Conference. The sessions continue during all the week closing Sunday, July 19 with the evening worship. The kindred will have charge of the music and also of the Children's Hour at 2:00 o'clock every afternoon. This is an exceptional treat for Dixon people right at their door.

7:30 P.M. Tuesday the Young Woman's Missionary Society will have Miss Edith Eyekamp as their guest and speaker. They invite the whole congregation. The meeting is to take the form of a reception. Miss Eyekamp is home from her mission in India on furlough and expects to return to her field the latter part of August. She should draw a large gathering. The girls are enthusiastic and making preparations for a good evening.

You are cordially invited to attend all our appointments and be sure to attend the Bible Conference.

MINIMUM WAGE SCALE

Marion, Ill., July 9—(AP)—Fifty cents an hour is the minimum wage for unskilled labor on county road contracts in Williamson county as a result of the adoption by the county board of supervisors of a road labor scale. The minimum for skilled labor is 60 cent an hour for a man and team 75 cents per hour, and 25 cents for an extra team.

Thirty cents an hour, the scale paid on hard roads by contractors in some communities in Illinois, is not a living wage. I. A. Palmer, Herrin insurance man, who was chairman of the committee which drew up the minimum wage scale, told the board in recommending the new scale.

Sao Paulo, Brazil, July 10—(UP)—

The world's largest snake farm, the Butantan Institute here, is facing a problem difficult to solve—a lack of snakes.

This snake crisis is seriously hampering continuation of studies of serotherapy and is decreasing the amount of anti-venom serums shipped throughout the world.

The director of the Butantan has sent circular letters to the agricultural schools throughout Brazil urging them to send poisonous and non-poisonous snakes to the Institute.

YOUNG'S FRIENDS
SEE HIM AS DARK
HORSE CANDIDATE

Talked Of As Compromise
Nominee By Democrats
At Convention

EDITOR'S NOTE: Recent developments appear to have convinced most politicians that President Hoover's renomination is certain. They are most interested now in the identity of his Democratic opponent. In several dispatches the United Press will describe briefly some of the leading figures in the discussion. It is emphasized that these dispatches are intended to be strictly impartial as between the potential candidates. No significance should be attached to the order in which they are described nor to the omission of any persons. The purpose is to picture those most in the public eye at the moment.

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
Washington, July 10—(UP)—While the most conspicuous activity regarding the Democratic presidential nomination centers around Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York, the reparations moratorium has brought the name of Owen D. Young of New York prominently into discussion.

Young had much to do with drafting the Dawes and Young reparations plans. President Hoover's moratorium is for one year so the issue of whether reparations and war debts should be further suspended or readjusted may become acute at the threshold of next year's presidential campaign. Therefore, some friends of Young believe the events may make him a logical Democratic selection.

Young has said he is not a candidate. Some of his friends say he will not let his hand be nominated and that if he is nominated it must be entirely without his cooperation. General belief is that an effort will be made in his behalf unless he specifically opposes it by some such positive statement as is credited to General Sherman who said: "If nominated, I shall not run. If elected, I shall not serve."

Kay Be Compromise

In view of the extensive organization which is developing for Governor Roosevelt, it is generally expected that Young would come into the nomination, if he does, somewhat the way John W. Davis did when he was chosen as a compromise candidate after Alfred E. Al Smith and William G. McAdoo fought their historic deadlock in 1924.

Why the persistent talk of this big business man, whose gigantic electric power and radio concerns have been attacked as "trusts"? The answer lies in what he has done what he is, and the scope of his statesmanship as his friends see it.

His business record shows these highlights: Practiced law in Boston 17 years; Counsel and Vice-President of General Electric nine years until 1922; Chairman of Board since that time. In addition he is or has been Chairman of the Radio Corporation of America; Director in the International General Electric, American & Foreign Power Corporation, General Motors, Mohawk-Hudson Corporation, Federal Reserve Bank of New York, Photophone, Inc., Radio-Koch-Corphe Corporation, Ossram Corporation of Berlin. Enough to fill his 56 years without the public activities which since the war constituted another career in themselves.

Created Radio Corp.

The Radio Corporation is said to have been largely Young's creation. After his nine years in the trenches as Counsel of General Electric and Vice President concerned with policy Young emerged as one of the modern statesmen of big business, creating problems of the vast industrial empire and guiding the young radio industry through pioneering stages. If business training and administration of large and complicated organizations is of any value in the White House, Young's friends believe he qualifies on this score.

They put much stock in Young the man. He still regards his birthplace, Van Hornesville, a village 70 miles north of Albany, N. Y., as his spiritual home. The old white house, the Universalist church across the road, the school which he has helped to build, are more home to him than his Park Avenue apartment. His daughter was recently married in the old homestead.

He is six feet, two and thin, "a lean horse for a long race", of hardy stock. His mother died recently at 92 years. His eyes have a humorous sparkle and his friendly personality blooms out when he rises to address an audience.

He time and again turns away wrath with a soft answer. When opponents of the power industry criticize him, he answers without rancor and has even gone part way to meet them in the issue. Though he has been in the center of controversy as spokesman for a business which has been under political fire for years, and as a key figure in the two European reparations conferences, his ability to turn off trouble smoothly has left few feuds on his trail.

It is this feature of his personality that makes his friends hopeful that he can overcome the opposition to nominating one so closely connected with power industry, opposition which is now rallying behind the other New York presidential nominee, Governor Roosevelt.

SHADOW OF GAS DEATH CHAMBER HOVERS OVER 5

Two Women Are in Group Facing Nevada Murder Charges

BY EARL H. LEIF
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Reno, Nev.—(UP)—The shadow of the lethal gas chamber today hangs over three men and two women in Nevada who have been accused of first degree murder, for which the maximum penalty is death.

Gunplay figured in four of the murders and a knife in the fifth. All of the victims were men. Two other slayings occurred this year but the "Nevada code" of non-interference in private feuds and the "law of the range" brought freedom to both victors in the quarrels.

A jury freed Frank Blondin, miner, for shooting and killing George Indiana, sheepherder, in the lonely Pyramid Lake section during an argument over grazing rights, and a coroner's jury exonerated Bill Graham's Reno "big shot" in sporting circles, for slaying F. R. McCracken during a gun duel in a Douglas Alley speakeasy.

The two women charged with murder are in the Elko County jail awaiting trial. Although one slaying occurred in Wendor and the other in Midas, Nev., there is a strange parallel between the cases—both of the men victims were shot in the back, both women were alone with the victims when the shootings occurred, both claim the dead men committed suicide and in each instance the officers claim suicide would have been impossible.

Beautiful Rita Thurman is charged with shooting Ray Monroe, at Dendover, Nev., after their return from a country dance.

The second woman, Mrs. Mary Young, was bound over for trial on first degree murder charges in the slaying of her husband, Del H. Young, miner, who was found dead in the doorway of his cabin with a bullet in his head.

In Las Vegas, Nevada's southern metropolis, two men face death or conviction. Louis Potter has been accused of killing J. A. Lewis, placing the body in a truck and overturning the truck to make it appear an accidental death.

John Hall, 52, is charged with shooting and killing Jack O'Brien, prospector. He was killed during an argument.

L. Cejus, Mexican, is held in the death house at Carson City pending an appeal in his case.

Picking Your Job

By MISS FRANCES PERKINS
(New York State Industrial Commissioner)

As Told to J. V. Fitzgerald of American School of the Air
In order to succeed in secretarial work you should be a capable stenographer, able to take dictation rapidly and accurately. You should have initiative so that you can answer certain letters without troubling your employer. It will be helpful if you know something about bookkeeping. You will need tact and patience in dealing with people, for you will be called upon to act as a buffer for your employer.

You will need to learn how he wants things done and do them that way. You should be willing to assume responsibility and think independently and yet within the general policy of your employer. I might add that you will need a high sense of business ethics and realize always that you should not discuss important or confidential work outside the office.

You will need a good knowledge of English and of English composition. And right here let me emphasize the desirability of being a good speller.

The best place to begin for young people starting out as secretaries is at work near their homes. Young people have many things to learn about business life before they are equipped to go out on their own. I would like to emphasize that girls in small communities who have been trained to do secretarial work are very foolish if they go to a big city unless they are assured of a position that pays at least $25 a week and unless they have at least $100 in savings.

I think there is a great chance for young men to rise to prominent business positions through getting started as secretaries to men of affairs. They are in a fine position to learn the inner-most workings of the business if they are right sort. Offhand I can think of such men as Samuel Insull, John J. Raskob, George B. Cortelyou and William Loeb, who started their careers in secretarial posts.

Maud Dodge spent Tuesday in Chicago. Walter Beck of Minnesota is the guest of his mother, Mrs. Maggie Beck.

Mrs. Cliff Johnson of Boston, Mass., who is visiting his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Kramer, spent from Friday until Wednesday in Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Mrs. C. S. Garrett of Indiana is visiting her brother-in-law, O. H. Voight.

Mrs. F. R. Muñiz and children of Rockford came Wednesday and are guests in the Homer Muñiz home.

The Ogle County American Legion and auxiliaries and their families will have their annual picnic at the State Pines park, Sunday, July 12. Supper will be at 5:30 o'clock.

C. G. Binkley and son-in-law and daughter Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bodifender arrived home Saturday from San Francisco, Cal. They came the

$5.00 Worth of Chickens DEAD

It happened just last week. A farmer drove up to our door and pulled several gunny sacks out of his car. We began taking hens from the sacks—squawking and gasping for air.

Then we found the first one-smothered to death. There were others—over $5.00 worth of chickens altogether. You might say he'd lost the profit on that load because he brought them in in sacks.

It's never a good plan to bring chickens to town that way—and it's particularly dangerous in hot weather. Put them in coops—and don't crowd the coops. You don't want to lose the profits on the way to town.

And speaking of selling hens—we hope it's only the non-layers that you have culled out of the flock.

Keep your laying hens. Egg prices are better.

New High Altitude Rocket Now Planned

Roswell, N. M., July 10.—(UPI)—New experiments in rockets and airplane motors to enable the study of the stratosphere are being made here by Dr. Robert H. Goddard, a professor of physics at Clark University, Worcester, Mass.

For the last year he has been experimenting here. He selected Roswell because of atmospheric conditions and the absence of storm areas. He is working under the direction of the Guggenheim Foundation.

A new type of airplane motor that will enable airplanes to travel in rare atmospheres and at higher speed than ever has been attained has been developed by Dr. Goddard and patented.

It has been estimated that above 600 miles an hour, rocket propulsion for airplanes will be more effective than any other type and it is on this theory that I have built and patented this motor," he said.

"Although the rocket jets themselves have more efficiency than either the Diesel engine or the steam turbine this efficiency cannot be utilized at lower, or present airplane speeds, because a large part of the energy passes off in the jet and comparatively little is given to the plane. The present invention, involving the use of a turbine and propeller, in addition to rocket jets, overcomes the disadvantage which exists under 600 miles an hour."

Dr. Goddard's rocket will carry thermometers, barometers, electrical measuring apparatus, air traps to collect samples of upper strata and other specially designed apparatus to gather information from the stratosphere. Propelled by a newly developed liquid fuel, Dr. Goddard hopes to sent the rocket 250 miles into the air.

Did you know that constipation often brings despondency? Poisons spread through the system. You lack pep. Headaches become frequent. No wonder you have the "blues."

Yet constipation can be overcome by having sufficient roughage in your diet. A pleasant way to obtain this roughage is through eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

You will enjoy this delicious cereal. And how much better for you than taking habit-forming laxatives.

Two tablespoonsfuls of ALL-BRAN, eaten daily, will relieve and prevent both temporary and recurring constipation.

ALL-BRAN also contains needed iron to build up the blood. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

STORY OF AUNT LIZZIE AIKEN

Frank E. Stevens, Formerly of Dixon, contributes Interesting Story of Early Days in Grand Detour and Vicinity.

(The following article, contributed to the Telegraph at the request of the editor, by Frank E. Stevens, Mayor of Sycamore and former Dixon newspaper editor, is highly interesting, since it deals with the primitive life and the trials and hardships of the early day settlers in this vicinity, particularly at Grand Detour, the beautiful village on Rock River six miles northeast of Dixon.)

"The Story of Aunt Lizzie Aiken," by Mrs. Galusha Anderson, was published in book form by Jansen, McClurg & Company, Chicago in 1890. It contains a fine steel engraved frontpiece of Aunt Lizzie and has 226 pages. Of itself this information would carry no interest except perhaps to a book collector of western America. But when the reader is further informed that Aunt Lizzie very soon after her marriage with Cyrus Aiken moved to Grand Detour, on Rock River, in Illinois, to begin life's realities, what the author has to say about her and Grand Detour in those early days will carry an abiding interest to the readers of The Telegraph. Pages 26-46 have to do with Grand Detour.

Aunt Lizzie, born, Eliza N. Atherton, March 24, 1817, near Auburn, New York, was married May 2, 1837 to Cyrus Aiken and here the story begins:

"At last on the second of May, 1837, Lizzie Atherton was married to Cyrus Aiken. Mr. Aiken was nine years older than his bride, a man of sedate turn of mind, and Christian principle, to whose keeping her parents were very happy to entrust the future of their daughter.

There was a large family gathering at the wedding and when Lizzie and her husband left home in the afternoon they were accompanied by several of her friends. They rode over in the quaint chaises then in general use, to Mr. Aiken's home in Claremont, New Hampshire. It was the custom of those days for the family of the bridegroom to give a reception and feast called the infare, to the bride upon her arrival at her new home. Lizzie's infare was held at the house of Mr. Aiken's father, built on Sugar River, near the town of Claremont. The old gentleman was a master builder and had taken great pride in the convenience and beauty of his house. He had even finished it off with mahogany, even more rare and costly than at present. The house stood in a finely cultivated place of about forty acres, and was built to be the home of the family for generations. But shortly before Lizzie's marriage an uncle of Mr. Cyrus Aiken had moved west and settled on Rock River in Illinois. He wrote home glowing accounts of the country, and went so far as to buy eighty acres and give it to his nephew on condition that he should come out and settle. The whole family caught the western fever, and finally the place was sold, when they all removed to the west.

"On Lizzie's wedding day, however, these events were yet in the future, and the large family were gathered together, for the last time at the infare. Great festivities were held, Mr. Aiken being both well to do and popular and the day ended with a grand reception and supper.

"After remaining in Claremont a few days, Mr. and Mrs. Aiken, following the universal custom of New England, made their bridal trip to Boston. They went, as there were no railroads, by the great lumbering stage, making frequent stops for the purpose of visiting relatives.

"Their stay at Boston lasted only a week, but was crowded with pleasure. This was the first time that Lizzie had ever seen the sea, and the great ships coming from every part of the world. Boston in those days had a much more extended commerce than now. Then of course they visited the Mecca of New England, Bunker Hill and other places of historic interest in the vicinity.

"When they again reached Vermont, they found that Lizzie's parents had packed all her goods for removal.

"After a sad parting from her beloved family, and one last embrace from her mother, she turned away from Cavendish to a life of hardship and trial.

"The party that crossed the mountains in the stage coach consisted of Lizzie and her husband, his father and sister with two little children. Mr. Aiken, senior, came west to spy out the land; he afterwards settled and died in Illinois. The sister came to meet her husband, who had already built him a log house on Rock River.

"At Whitehall they took the packet on the Erie canal, the great thoroughfare for western emigrants. If this mode of conveyance has been superseded by more speedy modes of travel, it must have been to those who had leisure, a pleasant way of seeing the country. Imagine crossing the state of New York by a conveyance that gave one ample time to investigate and enjoy the beauties of every field and hill. Our travelers beguiled the tedium of the journey by going ashore to gather wild flowers, or to make purchases at the villages through which they passed.

"When at last they reached Buffalo, they found themselves too early for the steamer, and went out to Black Rock, a few miles from the city, to visit Lizzie's aunt, Mrs. Ann the floors, sometimes as many as twenty women and children in one room, lying on the mattresses and feather beds they had brought with them. Our party crossed Fox river by fording it, and Lizzie Aiken, being a slight little body, weighing but ninety pounds, was perched on top of the boxes as they went over.

"When they arrived at Grand Detour, how great was their disappointment to find that the village they had expected to see had existed only on paper and in their own imaginations. In reality there were only two or three large log houses and one in process of building fr Mr. Cyrus Aiken. In their uncle's house, crowded together in two rooms, with sometimes as many as twenty-five in the family, they began their western life.

"After a few weeks the new log house was finished, and Mr. Aiken and his wife went to take possession. They soon found, however, that they were not the first occupants. When they arrived at sundown, they were too weary to put up beds, but slept that night on carpets and comforters laid down on the floor of split logs. Waking in the morning, Mrs. Aiken saw something crinkling along the side of the floor, and glanced in the early sunshine. Looking more closely, she saw to her horror, that it was a huge rattlesnake, making himself as much at home as if the house had been built for him. Their first act of housekeeping was to kill this unwelcome guest. This having been accomplished, Mrs. Aiken began to prepare such a meal as was possible under the circumstances, but when she went to the shelves nailed up on the wall, for the bread she had brought with her, she found three gophers complacently making their breakfast upon it. Certainly this was housekeeping under difficulties. However, they made a joke of their misfortunes, and having disposed of rattlesnake and gophers, went to work cheerfully to set the house in order. The rude walls were papered; on the puncheon floors carpets were laid, and curtains hung at the windows. The whole place assumed a cozy look of comfort that might have been deemed impossible the day before. The garden, planted beforehand, lay directly on the bank of Rock River. Indian mounds at that season covered with wild strawberries, were scattered all around on the prairie. Lizzie could stand in the door and see the trains of immigrant wagons crawling along the army trail, half a mile distant. The nearest house stood almost a mile away, only to return in an hour or two. After this had happened for the third time, she pushed the bed across the door, and slept no more till morning. During the rest of the year she barricaded the door every night.

"As they sailed up Lake Michigan the encountered another fearful gale that drove them to Milwaukee. Four of the passengers were shaking with ague, so Lizzie turned nurse and attended to their health. Two evil looking men mumbled some excuse about having entered the wrong room, and went away, only to return in an hour or two. After this had happened for the third time, she pushed the bed across the door, and slept no more till morning. During the rest of the year she barricaded the door every night.

"The gophers were not their only troublesome neighbors, as the following incident will show: One day, shortly after their arrival, Mr. Aiken invited two young friends to visit them. His wife, of course, was anxious to be hospitable, and at the same time to exhibit her skill as a housekeeper. So she stirred up some sponge cake and set it to bake in a tin reflector, another contrivance of the cook without an oven. Her husband stood looking on while she made plum cake. 'What can I do to help?' asked he. 'You might see if the sponge cake is browning,' was the reply. So taking the hot, yet half baked cake from the reflector, he suddenly dropped it from his burning fingers and it fell all in a heap. Still Lizzie made the best of it and said cheerfully, 'there is one left.' She counted without her husband, who stood at the door, but, however, the fragrant brown loaf of plum cake was put in the window to cool while she set the table. Happening to look at her husband, who stood at the door, she saw that he was laughing most heartily. She missed the cake from the sill, and hastened to the window just in time to see a long, thin wild hog, called by the settlers a prairie rooter, roll down the bank and swim across the river with her warm cake held carefully out of the water in his mouth.

"Indeed she seems to have been unfortunate in entertaining company. Some young gentlemen who had purchased a claim beyond them, kept bachelor's hall during the week, but came to the Aikens' on Sunday to enjoy the double treat of a good talk and a good dinner. One Saturday afternoon when her husband and father were three miles away, fencing in a section which they had bought, Mrs. Aiken went out to the Indian mound to gather at painful strawberries for Sunday's dessert. She had left her pantry full of good things—new bread, cakes, pies, all the dainties that taste so agreeably to men who have lived on fried pork and crackers. The strawberries were very abundant and she soon returned with a large pail full of ripe fruit. To her surprise, she found the door open, and on looking discovered two of the tallest Indians she had ever seen, coolly sitting at her table, devouring her provisions and drinking milk. They ate like men who never expected such a treat again. Mrs. Aiken saw with astonishment all her bread disappear, followed by loaf after loaf of cake and several pies and she began to fear that they would die. After eating enough to supply two white men for ten days, they turned and spied her outside the door. She tried to say, 'sago, sago?

"Their destination was Grand Detour on Rock River. The only way to reach it was by wagon, and they found a man who, for a hundred dollars, was willing to take them and part of their goods across the prairies. The ride was a beautiful one, despite the frequent sloughs. The prairies were brilliant with blossoms. Rosy, yellow, scarlet and white flowers, covering acres of ground, interspersed among the waving grass, gave the country the appearance of a vast garden. There were no trees except in the oak openings, along the banks of the streams. Under the shade of these groves were found the log houses of the settlers, built there on account of the shade and the vicinity of water. Every man's house was an inn, and the emigrants slept on the wine of their christian experience for each other's benefit.

"Mrs. Aiken's health improved so rapidly from the rest and good care which she enjoyed at Dr. Roe's that early in the autumn she was able to return home. She found that several families had settled around them; everywhere new homes were to be seen, in which people were living with unplastered walls, and partitions made by carpets hung between the rooms. Among these was a family named Cunningham. Mrs. Cunningham proved a most delightful neighbor. She had a large family, six sons and two daughters, little girls of eight and ten years; with all her cares found time to visit and comfort her sick neighbor. Whenever Mrs. Aiken, as she was affectionately styled in the settlement was able to ride out, Mrs. Cunningham was always ready to meet her, her little daughters, Mary and Caroline, also devoted themselves to the invalid. Never were they happier than when they could run over and play with the baby or sit on Sunday afternoon, one on each side of their friend and sing the songs she taught them. There was no Sunday school, but Mrs. Aiken began her first 'girls' meeting with these two attendants; she instructed them in the Bible, reading and teaching them verses. These children became thus one of the greatest comforts of her life, diverting her mind from her weakness and pain.

"Out on the prairie little Charlie's grave grew green, but had nothing as yet to distinguish it from the newer hillocks that began to cluster around it. His fond mother often thought that it would be seen to have some link between her darling's grave and the dear old New England home. Her father, knowing this desire, sent her, packed in the center of a barrel of home comforts, a tiny rooted plant of sweet briar that perfumed the garden at Cavanish. This little rosebush, with only three sweet leaves, planted with care, and watered by a mother's tears, grew in time to overshadow the grave and fill the air with fragrance of the New England hills, so dear to the heart of every wanderer.

"When after seven long weeks, Mr. Aiken was able to ride out a short distance, he was met on his return by his wife, who cried, 'Oh, Cyrus, I fear our darling baby is dying,' and entering the house found the poor child strangled with croup. Neighbors were summoned, only to see little Charlie die, as he lay on his mother's lap, the next morning. In her great sorrow her heart went up to God, and as she seemed to feel the hand of her grandfather laid on her head, she cried, 'I can only trust Him, and give up my darling.' Little Charlie, seven months old, lies buried on the prairie.

"In 1838, Lizzie's grandmother Ward died and left all her household effects to her favorite granddaughter. She had come in her youth, from Scotland and possessed many family relics in the shape of old silver salvers as well as bread and fruit dishes of the same precious material. These, together with her table silver, rare china, and table and bed linen, fragrant with lavender were carefully packed up and forwarded to the west. But by the same fatality that has followed all Aunt Lizzie's earthly possessions, these treasures never reached her. The boat by which they were sent, was burned on Lake Erie and her whole cargo lost.

"Indeed she seems to have been unfortunate in entertaining company. Some young gentlemen who had purchased a claim beyond them, kept bachelor's hall during the week, but came to the Aikens' on Sunday to enjoy the double treat of a good talk and a good dinner. the wine of their christian experience for each other's benefit.

"The next summer there came to Grand Detour a young Baptist student of theology, named Wickizer, spending his vacation in preaching as colporteur among the scattered sheep of the wilderness. A sturdy black-eyed youth from among the Pennsylvania Dutchmen, he labored hard to gather the Baptists into church. At Grand Detour he found six or eight, but they thought it better to hold their membership with the church at Dixon, ten miles away, than to organize themselves into a feeble church too weak to support itself. Mrs. Aiken, always hungry for the truth, gathered the neighbors in her house and Wickizer preached to them several times before he went on his way. These were the first services held by the Baptists in Grand Detour.

"The autumn of 1841 was a time of great suffering and sorrow. There was much sickness throughout the settlement and many died. Among these was little George Aiken, who was buried beside his brother, leaving his mother again childless, weeping for her children, and not to be comforted, save by that consolation which God himself bestows upon the desolate. To this action were added trials of a different kind.

"The strain of work in connection with difficulties in parliament and the reparations situation was believed to be responsible for his indisposition. He surrendered his place in the House of Commons to Chancellor Philip Snowden last night and went home to rest.

"A consultation with his physician, Sir Thomas Horder, failed to bring a statement but it is understood that the diagnosis was not alarming and that cessation from work for the next few days was the doctor's prescription.

"Mr. MacDonald may go to his country home at Chequers for a rest but he plans to attend a peace demonstration at Albert Hall Saturday. With Stanley Baldwin, David Lloyd George and representatives from other walks of life he will issue a united call for reduction of armaments.

There a storm destroyed their house. Death continued its visitations.

The breaking out of the Civil War Aunt Lizzie went to the front acting as nurse, and remained until the end of the war. Then she went to Chicago to live where the rest of her life was spent in hospitals and sick rooms ministering to the sick and the needy.

British Premier Is Ordered to Take Rest

London, July 9—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was slightly ill today with what was variously termed an "internal chill" and an attack of "nervous indigestion."

The strain of work in connection with difficulties in parliament and the reparations situation was believed to be responsible for his indisposition. He surrendered his place in the House of Commons to Chancellor Philip Snowden last night and went home to rest.
